

Gerry Speich, from Rotorsport UK, is bringing his brand new Cavalon gyroplane to Rufforth Airfield next Wednesday (16th November) so that we can get an "up close and personal" look at it before it goes on show to the public.

If you are interested and would like to have a look for yourself - come on down. It's not a formal launch, just a sneak preview, but you are more than welcome to join us.

The Cavalon will not be approved to fly until later in 2012 so it will be in the hangar, however we are expecting a number of Calidus gyroplanes to be flying around on the day if the weather is good.

In case you have not heard of the Cavalon, it is a side by side version of the very popular Calidus. The Cavalon has already been approved to fly in some other European countries. If you would like to join us, please would you let us know so that we can get an idea of numbers.

Hope you can make it. Start time around 11am, finish around 3pm.

Cheers Phil
