

It's the start of a new flying season.? Some of us have been flying through the winter, but as spring is getting closer there is some of the best flying weather just around the corner.? The cool dense air makes superb flying conditions - even in the Open Cockpit Gyrocopters.? The visibility at this time of year is awesome.

If you are wondering what to do with your holiday this year, you could join some of our other students on week-long flying holidays.? Learn to fly Gyrocopters whilst at the same time getting a bit of `you` time.? This year we have launched 2 new locations: The in Portugal and?

Perth

in Scotland.? We also have our well established facilities in

Devon

Salisbury

and

York

.? We all?offer these "flying holidays".? Join `like minded` gyro enthusiasts and talk Gyros all day long, and over a few beers in the evening.? Many of the locations also offer ad-hoc flying, if you just fancy a single day or a single flight.

For those of you who keep thinking about flying Gyros but never get around to it - book now, the diaries really are filling fast and within a few weeks it is likely that waiting lists will be over 3 months long.? Have a look at our locations by selecting the names on the map at the left hand side, each location has something different to offer - but they all guarantee a lot of fun and will show you how to enjoy Gyrocopters to their full potential.

We hope to see you soon.

Must Fly!
